If the final form of the bill does contain the clause about recreation as "non-essential", NIRA members should urge the President to consider a statement he made to NIRA in April of this year: "America's growing productivity has added considerably to the leisure-time of its workers. But the value of these leisure hours is ultimately determined by how they are used. I am pleased to note that the business community is systematically sponsoring employee programs that offer opportunities not just for relaxation and enjoyment, but
